SCHMIDT SAYS HE LONGS FOR CHAIR

In Which To Die For Atrocious Murder.

REPEATS HIS HORRIBLE TALE

Of Crime—Slayer Priest Says He Would Take Wendling's Place.

IN FRENZY, HE DEFIES DEATH

New York, Sept. 20.—For the first time since his arrest, Hans Schmidt, the priest who killed Anna Amuller and dismembered her body, spoke to newspaper men in the Tombs this afternoon and told his own story of the tragedy. In a melodramatic tone Schmidt shouted that he wanted to go to the electric chair as soon as possible. He said there had been too much delay.

The priest repeated that St. Elizabeth had told him to kill the girl, that she had counseled him to make counterfeit money so as to help the poor of the United States and Germany and that feeling that he had obeyed her order, he was willing to die without flinching.

Facing the reporters and endeavoring to answer a volley of questions at once, Schmidt said:

"Why do you newspaper men and the District Attorney question me so much? Why don't you be quick and put me in the chair? The District Attorney wants me to go to the chair, and I want to go to the chair, so why all this delay?"

"I am sorry for any man who thinks life in this world is worth living."

"I have faced death many times, and I will face death in the electric chair without moving a muscle. Everything is known, then why all these formalities and this red tape?"

One reporter flashed a question regarding charges that he was implicated in the murder of Alma Kellner, the child whose body was found in the basement of St. John's Church in Louisville and for whose death the janitor of the church is now serving a life term.

"I would be only too pleased if I could convince the authorities in Louisville that I killed that little child," answered Schmidt. "It might help the poor fellow in prison, but you see nobody would believe me."

"When one confesses freely to murders, one is not believed. When one denies being guilty of murder, one is accused. I did not kill the child in Louisville. I did not kill other persons. To say I did so would be patently false and only laughable."

"But I would really take the blame for the murder in Louisville if I thought I could aid that poor man shut up for life."

Schmidt afterward expressed ideas on the taking of human life that filled in with the theory of Inspector Faurot, in charge of the murder investigation, that the renegade priest might have been planning a series of homicides. He declared himself a believer in euthanasia, and that he would be doing right in taking the lives of the crippled and of persons undergoing mental or physical suffering, detectives who talked with him this afternoon reported.

"I believe I would be carrying out God's will," Schmidt said, "if I put out of this world all such people. I would end their lives without their suffering any pain."

Faurot's suspicions of Schmidt's possible homicide plan were strengthened by the discovery among Schmidt's effects of a book of physicians' death certificates and other blanks necessary in disposing of the dead. Schmidt declared that these were only for use in the case of Anna Amuller.

He had stolen the certificates from a reputable physician uptown, he told the detectives, because he had intended to kill the girl in a way that would make it appear she had died a natural death. But afterwards he had decided to cut her throat and dispose of her body as best he could.

"Schmidt's papers have given us fifty clues," said Faurot to-day, "any one of which is liable to turn up something new about his activities. His industry was amazing and his resourcefulness wonderful. But I am unable to say now whether we caught him at the beginning or at the end of a series of homicides."

COUNTY HOSPITALS ARE PROPOSED BY COMMISSION

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 20.—With the view of placing a hospital for tuberculosis patients in each county where it is needed, the State Tuberculosis Commission has directed Dr. Everett Morris to go to Daviess and Henderson counties and aid in the campaign of education.

At the conclusion of the campaign it will be determined by the board whether the question of erecting the hospitals should be left to the Fiscal Courts or to the people by popular vote.

The State Fair exhibit will be used in Fayette county for ten days, beginning with September 22, and the tuberculosis car will be at Winchester all next week.

POWER OF PUBLICITY A MODERN DISCOVERY

Advertising not only pays, but its value as news is coming to be more and more appreciated. There is not an enterprising corporation or shrewd business firm that is not now informing the public, through the medium of advertising, what kind of new business each is engaged in and what are the prospects for the future.

The old-time methods of silence on the part of public utility corporations have been abandoned. Even the Standard Oil Company was finally obliged to advertise its purposes and to authorize its managers to give out interviews. No one is advertising to a greater extent than the heads of big transportation companies and those corporate bodies engaged in the dissemination of intelligence by telegraph, telephone and wireless. These are sensible moves.

The public is intelligent enough to appreciate all publicity based on the truth. The truthful advertiser succeeds all the time, and he is deserving of all the increased patronage he is sure to receive. When there is a lull in business from any cause, shrewd men of affairs get busy and advertise.—[Boston Globe.]

AGRICULTURAL SCHOOLS FOR STUDY OF FARMING

Carlisle, Ky., Sept. 22.—Men and women of Nicholas county as well as boys and girls are enrolling in the agricultural classes of the night agricultural schools that have been started by Miss Lida E. Gardner, superintendent of Nicholas county schools, in the rural schools of this county. The ages of those now enrolled range from fourteen to sixty years, and the pupils are very enthusiastically studying the modern methods of farming. It is said that these are the first night rural schools for the teaching of agriculture started in the United States. The County Board of Education has selected Mrs. George W. Taylor, of near this city, a leading educator, as assistant supervisor of rural schools, to assist the county superintendent in the work of supervision.

SLAVERY EXISTS IN PHILIPPINES

And Is Found By Every Investigator.

CHILDREN SOLD INTO BONDAGE

By the Hill Tribes and Kept As Slaves Balance Of Their Lives.

TRAFFIC IN GIRLS IS LARGE

Washington, Sept. 20.—Secretary Garrison had before him to-day a Philippine slavery report by W. H. Phipps, Auditor for the islands, practically backing up the startling charges of Dean Worcester. It cites details of many cases of boys and girls sold into slavery at prices ranging from $60 to $100, and how heads of families sell their daughters and regard the practice as a right.

"I have no hesitancy in saying I think the charges of Secretary Worcester that slavery exists in the Philippines are sustained," says Mr. Phipps.

The Phipps report is based upon investigations conducted under the direction of the Philippine Auditor by district auditors. It was accompanied by a list of names of sixty-seven persons held as slaves, some being held outright and some under the so-called "debt" system, the fallacy of which is shown by the fact that some of the slaves so held are more than sixty years old and have been held by their present owners since birth.

"The almost universal report made to me by each person who has been asked to investigate," wrote Mr. Phipps, "was that slavery in some form existed to his personal knowledge. With a number it is a form of peonage, which is the most extensive form of slavery practiced here; with many others it will be noted it is the barter and sale of human beings by one person to another, who holds such person so sold to him in absolute subjugation, and they perform duties and labor for him without compensation further than scanty clothing and in many instances indifferent food."

All of the district auditors who assisted Mr. Phipps were obliged to promise their informants that their names would not be made public. The names of the officials who helped in the preparation of the report also are withheld.

One investigator made this report:

"My observation has been that the largest percentage of real slavery exists in those provinces adjacent to or in part inhabited by the hill tribes or so-called non-Christians. I myself have known of several instances where children have been purchased from the hill tribes, and believe a house-to-house canvass of the servants of the well-to-do classes of Filipinos and a proper inquiry into their status will show a large number of them are actually owned, having been acquired by purchase."

"Some of these persons are old men and women who have been the property of some family since childhood. There is a considerable traffic in girls. I personally have had a number of offers of this kind, and it is a generally known fact that a large percentage of the Chinese, who have Filipino wives, actually bought them at a stipulated price."

"A recent instance in which I was offered boys and girls for the small amount of 20 pesos, 30 pesos and 40 pesos, was in August of last year at Cebu. Peonage exists in all parts of the islands and in many instances amounts to slavery."

Another district auditor said he was reliably informed every negro servant in his district was originally enslaved.

"They are generally bought," wrote the investigator, "when quite young and kept as slaves until they become old enough to shift for themselves."

The report said the commonest explanation of the presence of the "black" slaves in families is that the parents died and the family adopted the orphan children.

Hunting Season Over.
Put up your gun for six weeks.

The open season is now closed. You can't kill anything in the way of game until November first, even rabbits and squirrels are to be let alone until then. Remember the game and fish law in Kentucky is broader than it used to be and the game wardens are expected to be more active than formerly.

SAYS SHE HAS NO FEAR OF BEING UNWELCOME

Paris, Sept. 22.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the British militant suffragettes, in a statement here yesterday declared she will "positively" sail for America on October 11. She added that she had already booked passage.

"I don't believe that American immigration authorities will detain me, and certainly not for long," she continued. "I am not the least afraid of deportation, and will not resort to any subterfuge to gain admission to that country."

"I will sail under my own name, and am convinced I will receive fair play. I have much faith in the open-mindedness of the people of America. As soon as I finish my lectures in America I shall return to England to resume my work."

TRY ALGEBRAIC RULES WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS

Huntington, W. Va., Sept. 20.—Gilbert Shaw, 38 years old, a Southern Pacific Railway conductor, with headquarters at Tuscon, Ariz., and Mrs. Margaret Pogue, of Ironton, O., were married here to-night, and both have been busy since that time trying to figure out just how they stand on relationship.

After calling in expert help to unwind the knotty problem the pair came to the conclusion that the groom is not only the husband of his wife, but also her uncle, step-father to her children, as well as their father and great uncle.

On the bride's side she was found to be the niece as well as the wife of her husband and a great aunt as well as the mother of her own children. The children are grand nieces of their father and second cousins of each other.

All this scrambling of relationship happened when Shaw married his nephew's divorced wife. Mrs. Pogue has several children by her former husband, whom she divorced because of non-support.

Expect to "Clean Up." The Louisville Times of Thursday says:

G. B. Likens, Deputy State Auditor, was among the State officials who attended the State Fair yesterday. Gabe, who hails from Ohio county, said that the Democrats of that county had made up their minds to bury the fusion ticket, made up of Republicans and Bull Moose, and elect the whole Democratic ticket, including M. T. Westfield for Representative in the Legislature. Mr. Likens, it is said, has his eye on a place on the next State ticket.

TROUBLE IS LAID TO OIL TRUST

Reports Put Blame On Standard Company.

IMMENSE LOAN WAS OFFERED

Mexican Government by Agent Of Standard For Certain Privileges.

STANDARD FINANCED MADERO

Washington, Sept. 20.—Official reports of Gen. Huerta to-night directly accused the Standard Oil Company of financing the Madero revolution, of attempting to bribe Huerta and of declaring that the present revolt would continue until the provisional president met the oil trust's terms.

These accusations were based on the following dispatch from Mexico City to Huerta's aides in this city:

"A wealthy landowner in the State of Jalisco makes sensational declarations regarding the part played by the Standard Oil Company in Mexican events since the inception of the Madero revolution. He declares that while in San Antonio the Texas Standard Oil manager for the Southern District of the United States, told him that until the Standard Oil should obtain complete possession of oil wells in Mexico, revolutions would continue."

"That is the reason the Standard Oil supported the Maderista and opposed Reyes' movement."

"The Standard Oil Company offered to present the Mexican Government with a $200,000,000 loan on easy terms, almost at par, besides making assurance that the Huerta Government would receive immediate United States recognition. The representative of the Standard declared his company controlled the United States Senate."

"It offered also to pay a tax of 12 1/2¢ a barrel on oil instead of 5¢, the tax paid by British companies, the principal of which is the Aguila Oil Company."

"The Standard Oil representative declared his company would not rest until Mexico has the President and Government it wants."

"He said he believed the present Government de jure and de facto, but, unfortunately, it had not accepted the Standard Oil terms."

When the Madero revolution first started, officials here declared that sources of rebel funds would be found in Wall Street, but no investigation was ever made there.

STOLE SUM OF $15,580 AND WAS FINED $300

Council Bluffs, Ia., Sept. 20.—Joseph E. Wright, of San Antonio, Texas, pleaded guilty in the United States District Court of swindling T. E. George, of San Antonio, out of $15,580 on a fake wrestling match. Wright was fined $300, which was paid.

Wright is the last to be convicted of the principals in the larger operations of J. C. Maybray and his associates, whose swindling schemes with fake athletic events aggregated $1,000,000.

INDULGENCE IN DRINK CAUSED ALL TROUBLE

San Francisco, Sept. 20.—In sentencing Maury L. Diggs and F. Drew Caminetti to the federal penitentiary for violating the Mann act, Judge Van Fleet declared throughout the case there was evidence that drink had paralyzing influences upon the morals and minds of the defendants and the young girls with whom they made the trip to Reno. "The terrible debasing influence of saloon and road house is too disgustingly apparent," said the court, "and I make the observation here that society must pay the price for permitting the existence of these highly objectionable places."

The court said the degree of guilt in the case of Diggs and Caminetti is not so great as in cases where men transport women from one State to another for purposes of gain, but the statute prohibits the interstate transportation of women for immoral acts.

THE STRANGE NICKELS ARE NOT COUNTERFEITS

Washington, Sept. 10.—Needless fears of supposedly counterfeit nickels, it was stated by Secret Service officials to-day, are disturbing many people throughout the country. Complaints of counterfeiting are pouring into the Treasury Department, but Acting Chief Herman Moran says the apprehension is due to unfamiliarity with the fact that the department recently made a slight change in the new coin. In the revised design the words, "five cents," are brought out in greater relief than in the original. This difference gives rise to reports of counterfeits.

THIS SCHOOL LAW IS IN FORCE EVERYWHERE

Section 204 of the School Laws of Kentucky compels children between the ages of seven and twelve years to attend school, unless the child is proven physically unable to be in school. Section 205 provides a heavy fine or imprisonment in the county jail for any parent or guardian who makes a false statement in this regard. Section 207 states that it shall be the duty of teachers to report promptly and regularly to the sub-district trustees and to the County Board of Education through the County Superintendent of Schools the names of all parents or guardians who fail to send their children to school. In view of the fact that some of the children in Jefferson county are being kept at home; and out of school, the proper ones should attend to their duties at once and see that the law is obeyed. Kentucky will go forward as the children of the State are educated. We can not educate them unless we send them to school.—[The Jeffersonian.]

WORST DROUGHTS OF PAST YEARS

In Kentucky Compared With 1913 Season.

MAN WHO HAS KEPT RECORD
For Forty-Five Years Gives Interesting Account Of Weather.

THIS HAS HAPPENED BEFORE

H. F. Hillenmeyer, of Lexington, the widely known nurseryman, who has since 1868 personally kept a weather record and who is considered an authority upon data of this kind, writes as follows concerning the drouth now prevailing and compares it with similar drouths from which Kentucky has suffered in the past. He says:

"A record, begun in 1868 and faithfully kept, shows that there have been in this time seasons about as unfavorable as this.

"A copious rain fell May 4, 1874, and a few light showers just after. On June 26 there was rain enough to stop the plows for the afternoon, and another of equal volume on the night of July 28. Showers intervening from May until November were merely dust layers. It is needless to say there was no grass in the pastures, little millet and such like; that hemp was hardly worth cutting, and corn small, chaffy and high as the proverbial cat's back. Tobacco was hardly at that time a staple crop.

"In 1903 the drouth began in May and continued through September, the total rainfall of the three months being 8.24 inches. It is needless to comment on the result, or that winter set in on fields brown as a berry. Frost fell on June 13 of that year, later than ever by me recorded. The earliest autumn frost on record occurred August 31, 1861, making the frost-free period of Fayette county seventy-eight days.

"The year 1913 is before us. The rainfall from May 1 to September 1 has been 10.75 inches, or an inch and a half more than 1903. It has fallen in spots, and on such there are fine crops. The June rainfall at Lexington was a trifle more than that of Sandersville.

"The heat has been terrific, but we have been singularly free of wind, which would have been more injurious even. The one and only crop that has not winced under the prevailing conditions is the soy bean, and those are as flourishing as the 'green bay tree' and promise a great crop of toothsome provender.

"The drouths of 1854 and 1856 are the joy of the ancient historian of a later generation. The record of Lawrence Young, of Louisville, a careful estimator, says the rainfall of the three months under consideration was 12.43 inches in 1854 and 11.69 inches in 1856. His record was begun in 1841, and in so far as rainfall is a factor, the year 1903 bears the palm over these seventy-two years.

"It might be of interest to add that the three terrific frosts of May 8, 15 and 22, 1845, and the exceeding drouths of that month, with the flooding rains of the one following prevented the replanting of crops frozen and the gathering of those matured. The summer of 1868 was wet and cool. The winter following was warm and muggy.

"Whether farmers next spring will be more sorely pressed than were their brothers during these years of the past is a mooted question. The frosts, floods and drouths of 1816 were so severe that the wild cane and brush of fallen elms were practically the only provender at hand the winter following."

DIAZ IS ORDERED BACK TO MEXICO

To Become Candidate For Presidency.

CATHOLIC PARTY FOR HUERTA

Bankers Hold Out No Hope Of Assistance After Elections.

HUERTA WILL SUPPORT DIAZ

Mexico City, Sept. 20.—Instructions have been sent by President Huerta to Gen. Felix Diaz, who is now in Europe, to return to Mexico immediately. It is expected that he will sail within a few days.

This fact is learned on high authority and it is regarded here as indicating that Gen. Huerta intends to abide by the pact signed at the American embassy last February to place no obstacle in the path of Gen. Diaz in his candidacy for the presidency.

It is considered possible that Gen. Huerta will throw his influence to Diaz, which would practically insure his election.

The partisans of Diaz have not ceased to labor in his behalf, and assert they have organized upward of 3,000 "clubs" throughout the republic. Up to the present Gen. Diaz is the only candidate in the field.

The Catholic party, which is the only big organization likely to put forward a candidate in opposition, held a convention several weeks ago and adjourned without acting. The leaders of that party have called another convention for next Sunday. It is no secret that they favor Huerta, and in the previous convention they decided to support the President should he again become a candidate. Gen. Huerta, however, has given no indication of such intention.

Much comment has been caused by the selection by President Huerta of Eduardo Tamariz, one of the most prominent among the younger leaders of the Catholic party, for the portfolio of Public Instruction in his Cabinet, vacated by Jose Maria Lozano, who has been transferred to the Department of Communications and Public Works. Tamariz has never held an important public office, although for several years he has been identified closely with political affairs.

It is learned that the bankers who recently agreed to finance the administration to the extent of 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 pesos have declined to offer any hope of assistance dating beyond the coming elections.

Gen. Trevino, who was selected by Gen. Huerta to head the Military Court, has declined the post, giving as his reason ill health and his advanced age. It is expected he will remain in the capital for the present.

Such newspapers as commented on the President's message have voiced mild approval of it, none of them attaching particular significance to any portion. There were no disturbances on Independence Day in any part of the republic.

Federico Gamboa, the Foreign Minister, is regarded as the probable choice of the Catholic party, after Gen. Huerta, for the presidency.

A bill was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies to-night for the suppression of the vice presidency. It was referred to a committee.

LIVES ARE SPENT BENEATH SURFACE

Thousands Of New Yorkers So Live.

HUNDREDS WORK IN DARKNESS

And Know Little Or Nothing Of the Pleasures Of An Open Air Life.

THE DAYLIGHT BLINDS THEM

From 1,500,000 to 1,750,000 of the residents of New York City spend at least a portion of each day underground, and many thousands come to the surface so rarely that the light of day blinds them when they reach it.

So accustomed has New York become to the idea of living underground that only a few days ago a public celebration was held when a new underground passageway was opened. This newest tunnel, costing many thousands of dollars, was dug to give the people who live near the Hudson river and the neighborhood of 181st street an opportunity to pass beneath the hills from their homes to the subway, by which means they travel to the lower end of Manhattan Island to Brooklyn, and by means of a transfer, to New Jersey. Until this underground cut-off was opened the same citizens had to walk about 1,000 feet up and down hill breathing the good outdoor air. Now they will make the same trip underground through a damp, dingy passageway, and because they save a few hundred feet and a bit of exertion, consider themselves fortunate.

According to the best obtainable statistics about 20,000 persons in New York City spend their entire working hours beneath the surface of the earth. These figures include 3,800 employees on the two systems of subways now in operation. They include 4,000 men who are employed digging the new subways. This force will be more than doubled in the near future. Also included are 1,200 men, most of whom are working several hundred feet below the street surface, driving that wonderful aqueduct which is to carry throughout the island of Manhattan and over into Long Island the waters that are being brought down by siphon from the Catskill mountains. Then there are more than 10,000 men and women who are employed in more private enterprises that take them constantly below the street surface.

On quite ordinary days 1,500,000 persons are accommodated in the New York subways, and the crowds are multiplying week by week.

Men go below the surface to reach the trains that are to take them from that architectural wonder, the new Pennsylvania station, east and west out of the city. After they have reached the trains they are dropped still further underground in order that they may pass beneath the bottom of the Hudson and East rivers.

To get out of New York City by means of the New York Central railroad or the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad it is necessary to make use of that other architectural wonder, the Grand Central station, and again travelers drop down into the bowels of the earth before they may start.

In the great hotels of New York the mechanical departments are all far beneath the street surface. These departments are well worth visiting, and in most cases the hotel proprietors are only too glad to permit their kitchens, bakeshops, furnace rooms, engine rooms and laundries to be inspected. These places ordinarily are cleanest in the entire hotel.

Many of New York's greatest department stores are connected directly with the subways, as are also some of its newer theaters. Last February a family of three from San Francisco, visiting in New York, stayed for a fortnight in one of the most fashionable and most expensive hotels in the city, spent most of their time shopping, sightseeing and theatergoing, and only once during the entire fourteen days passed out into the open air of the outside world. From their rooms in the hotel they were dropped by elevator to the level of the subway. Through the subway they went to department stores, theaters, restaurants, museums and even to church. When they started for home they went by subway from their hotel to the Grand Central station, and did not get out into the sunlight until their train had well started on its long journey. Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 17.—Enforcement of an order excluding women and civilians from the forty-seventh annual parade of the Grand Army of the Republic to-day prevented the N. B. Forrest Camp of United Confederate Veterans participating in the pageant.

Clad in their gray uniforms the Southerners were preparing to form in the line of march with Forsythe Post No. 15, of Toledo, Ohio, when they were informed of the order.

A near mutiny followed among the Ohio soldiers for a time and they threatened not to participate in the parade. The threat later was reconsidered, and the parade was held as scheduled. The Southern men expressed great friendship for the Ohio veterans, declaring they were not to blame.

The affair created a sensation here, and was the principal subject of conversation on the streets to-night, as many former Confederates have taken a prominent part in the entertainment of the members of the G. A. R. since their arrival here Monday.

An invitation to join in the parade had been tendered Colonel L. T. Dickinson, commander of the Forsythe Post. Just when they were ready to take their places Colonel Hanson informed Colonel Dickinson that the commander of the Department of Ohio, Colonel W. R. Warnock, had been instructed to bar every one from the parade except Union veterans.

Colonel Hanson expressed deep regret over the incident. The Confederate veterans also appeared distressed, but as they marched quietly back to their headquarters they were greeted with cheers by the Union veterans.

In a statement to-night Colonel Dickinson said:

"We regret the incident very much, but I believe our comrades, and especially those in the Forsythe Post, were even more distressed. We held no ill feeling toward the rank and file of the boys in blue. The boys in blue are with us and for us and we are with and for them. To show that there is no hard feeling against them we are tendering them an invitation to visit our camp tomorrow. This invitation is to the rank and file of the boys in blue."

The following explanation of the incident was made in a statement to-night by Commander in Chief Alfred B. Beers, of the G. A. R.:

"Yesterday I learned that there was a body of women here planning to take part in the Grand Army of the Republic parade. I also understood that these women were from the State of Ohio. For this reason I called the attention of the Commander of the Department of Ohio to the following extract from General Order No. 10, which reads: 'Women and civilians are prohibited from participating in the parade, and Department Commanders are directed to enforce this order in their respective departments.'"

"I didn't know that an invitation had been extended to Confederate veterans to take part in the parade, and never heard that there was any intention of extending an invitation to the N. B. Forrest Camp U. C. V. It was certainly not tendered by headquarters, nor was the permission of headquarters asked to extend such an invitation, nor was the indorsement of such an invitation by headquarters asked.

"The Forrest Camp of Confederate Veterans was excluded in accordance with a general order issued September 2, 1913, barring all persons from the parade except G. A. R. members. This order was based on a custom which has been observed in the past.

"In addition to this the Confederate camp was not excluded because its members were former Confederate soldiers, but because it is the policy of the Grand Army of the Republic to have only its members in the parade, with the exception of Sons of Veterans, who were officially invited to act as escorts."

Fully 12,000 Union survivors of the Civil War marched through the streets of Chattanooga to-day in the parade. In the face of a steady rain the veterans trudged between human walls of cheering spectators along the entire route.

HOW OPIE BECAME AN UNWILLING AUDITOR

While the lyceum platform has no monopoly of the bete noir business, it has its full tale of them.

One of the worst dreaded of them is being called to the home of some enterprising citizen who has a daughter afflicted with recititis.

"Bob" Burdette recently told a story that Opie Read had told him, about Opie's experience in trying to sidestep an ordeal of this nature in an Illinois town.

Opie had finished his evening's story telling, when a citizen approached him, complimented him, and added:

"Mr. Read, we have a daughter who, I think, is very talented in the elocutionary line. I wish you would come to our house to-morrow morning, about 9, and hear her."

Opie had agonizing previsions of "Curfew Shall Not" and other things, including "Lasca," so he said:

"I'm mighty sorry, but I have to leave to-night for the West."

"But there's no train."

"Yes, there's the 12:54."

"But it goes East."

"Did I say West? I meant East."

"But it is a freight, you know."

"I have permission to ride it. I must get it, to make my next date."

"But it is a fast freight and doesn't stop here."

"Ordinarily, no. But I have permission from the superintendent. He notified the local agent, and it is to stop."

"Well—that's funny! I'm the agent."

Opie looked at the man a moment in utter defeat, then said:

"There's just one more thing I can say, and that is I'm the biggest liar in Illinois. Where is your house?"

CHRIST IS UPHELD IN AN ARGUMENT

By Eminent Lawyer Of South-West.

ASSUMES LEGAL STANDPOINT

In Case and Takes Evidence Which Shows It Is Irrefutable.

VIEWS OF COURT IN MATTER

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 20.—Before the Christian Brotherhood, at the First Christian church in Oklahoma City, Judge John B. Harrison, formerly of Lawrenceburg, Ky., now one of the members of the Oklahoma Supreme Court, delivered one of the most remarkable addresses ever heard in the Southwest. The address is being printed and will be sent out to the bar of this and other States and to various ministerial associations.

Judge Harrison chose as his subject, "The Divinity of Jesus Christ Under the Rules of Evidence From a Lawyer's Standpoint."

After emphasizing the importance of the question, Judge Harrison said that the subject might be treated either from a criminal standpoint, wherein Jesus' accusers would undertake to prove Him an impostor, in which event the burden of proof would be upon the accusers, or from a civil standpoint; alleging His divinity in a civil action, thereby placing the burden of proof upon the advocates of His claims. He chose the civil procedure, thereby assuming the burden of proof.

"But," said Judge Harrison, "if the issue were being tried as a criminal action, charging the Saviour with being an impostor, and I were appearing as counsel for the defendant, the first thing I would do, after the testimony of the prosecution was submitted, would be to demur to the evidence. For if all the evidence which the infidel world has been able to discover in 1900 years, together with all the puny philosophy which has been picked out of the pigmy heads of skeptics during all these centuries, were offered in evidence in support of the charge, there is not a civilized court in all Christendom that would not, without hesitation, sustain the demurrer to the evidence and discharge the defendant."

"It will be unnecessary to offer in evidence," continued the speaker, "such facts as are agreed to be true. It is agreed by the scholars and historians that there was such a man as Jesus of Nazareth; that He was born in Bethlehem of Judea at or about the time testified to by evangelists; that He was brought up by Joseph and Mary; that His early life, His occupation and lack of educational advantages were practically the same as testified to by the evangelists; that it was known among the acquaintances of Jesus that He had some mission on earth; that some great things were expected of Him; and yet no effort was made nor pains taken to prepare Him for the important events He was expected to engage in or perform."

"It is agreed that at about thirty years of age He began to preach the very things the evangelists say He preached; that notwithstanding He was uneducated and had never been prepared for the ministry, yet in preaching and in His teachings He evinced a most profound knowledge of philosophy, a thorough and complete understanding of men and human affairs and a most intimate familiarity with every detail of the law, the prophets and of all the Old Testament writings."

"It is also agreed that He was a man of deep piety, was a good man and went about doing good; that after about three years of His preaching He was betrayed, accused, tried, condemned, crucified and laid in the sepulcher under guard of the Roman soldiers, practically as testified to by the evangelists; that He was crucified and laid in the sepulcher Friday and was missing Sunday morning; that His body was never recovered by the soldiers, nor was any attempt made to recover it, although they claimed it had been stolen while the soldiers were asleep; that none of the disciples were prosecuted for stealing the body nor any of the soldiers prosecuted for going to sleep and allowing the body to be stolen, although such an offense under the Roman law was punishable by death."

After arranging the evidence in a logical manner, citing the lack of footprints or other signs of theft, the evidence of the disciples as against the mere allegation of the soldiers, who admitted to having been asleep, Judge Harrison referred to the multitude of witnesses having met a man who answered to the description of Jesus and the belief was not disputed at the time, but which led thousands to espouse it at Pentecost.

"Almost every material issue," said Judge Harrison, "is agreed upon except the one pivotal issue, whether Jesus arose from the dead." Here he cited the rules of evidence as laid down by Greenleaf regarding ancient documents and dwelt upon the competence of witnesses—the evangelists—unimpeachable under any rule of any court.

The Judge took up in detail the alleged discrepancies of the four principal writers, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, and showed that in matters like the women at the tomb and the time of their visitations, there was no discrepancy on any material fact which any court would recognize, one having mentioned one woman, another another and another mentioning both, neither statement eliminating or controverting the fact set forth in the other.

After setting up in a legal way many other matters of evidence Judge Harrison strengthened his arguments by mentioning and citing all of the surrounding circumstances, the prophecies of the Messiah, the forerunners' acceptance of Jesus as the Son of God, His acceptance along Jordan, and numerous other seemingly incontrovertible facts.

After the Judge had concluded his address it was voted unassailable and the decision to have it published and sent broadcast over the country was unanimous.

Collins, Miss., Sept. 19.—John C. Easterling, 55 years old, a wealthy land owner, is being held here pending an investigation into an incendiary fire that destroyed a $10,000 school building which Easterling is said to have objected to on account of the increase in taxation.

When found the hounds leaped upon Easterling and had to be beaten off. The trail covered 50 miles.

Only six weeks now until the November election. It behooves all Democrats to be on the alert.

Wonder what has become of Ohio county's King road drag, ordered some months ago by the Fiscal Court to be made and put into commission?

Gen. Huerta seems to be impressed with the idea that President Wilson, in his handling of the Mexican matter, is not in accord with the great mass of people of the United States. In this he is mistaken. Every patriotic American citizen is with the President.

In these modern times prizes are not offered for the prettiest baby, but for the most physically "perfect" specimen of infantile humanity. Inasmuch as every mother naturally thinks her baby is the prettiest, and that this will count for much in the decision, the new ruling does not materially affect the number of entries.

That the business interests of the country have the fullest confidence in the new tariff bill and its political promoters and supporters, is evidenced by the way they are receiving it. No lock-out notices, no threatening cry of hard times, but on the contrary, business of all kinds is proceeding with increased energy and optimism. Such is the confidence in the present Democratic administration.

Every once in awhile we receive a circular from one of the several concerns scattered around over the country which proposes to write our editorial staff for us at the very low price of a dollar a month. Cheap enough and the stuff makes fair copy. However, this column may be pretty bum sometimes, (and we are quite sure it is) but it was thought out and written right here in the shop, and whether passably good, or bad, it is not plagiarized.

The Ohio County Fair begins today and should have the most liberal patronage of the people of the county. Dr. Bean has assumed a big responsibility in giving us a fair this year, after a lapse of three sessions, and he should receive the hearty encouragement of the people in this worthy effort. Everybody should have county pride enough to attend, and they are assured the worth of their money in entertainment. Let's make it the biggest Fair the county ever had.

The Bull Moose party has done little else than create destruction and dissension in Republican ranks since its inception. In fact, this seems to have been its main purpose. Wherever it has invaded the strongholds of Republicanism it has caused strife and discord, aiming to crush its former party friends and set itself up as a political god. Two notable instances are in Butler and Ohio counties, where the formerly strong Republican party has been almost annihilated.

Taking into consideration the assertion of Hon. W. J. Bryan that he cannot meet his ordinary expenses and live on the $12,000 per year which his office of Secretary of State affords him, and that $20,000 per annum is the least he can put up with, the New York World voluntarily offers to supplement his income with the necessary difference of $8,000 per year, provided Mr. Bryan will devote his entire time to the duties of his office. This appears to be a very generous offer, but it is doubtful whether Mr. Bryan will accept it.

Almost every community has its "whited sepulchers"—as our Saviour called them—those people who assume to walk the straight and narrow path of rectitude yet do not lose an opportunity to criticize the characters, or actions of others whose failings, perhaps, are not greater than those of their critics, if known. They are the ones who stand aloof, but for personal reasons are unable to cast the first stone. They never extend the kindly, helping hand, and are quick to hear and repeat slanderous reports. But where will they stand at the Judgment Day?

The many friends of Rev. Geo. W. Briggs, the noted evangelist and Bible orator, will be pleased to know that although he has resigned from the ministry, he has taken up editorial work and is now managing editor of the Galveston (Texas) News. For many years Mr. Briggs was one of the most able and eloquent pulpits orators in the country, until he became afflicted with a disease that has dragged many a good man down. Through it all, however, his earnestness and loyalty in the cause of the Cross was never doubted. But he has been restored to his former prestige and although his life lines are directed in a different channel, he is making good.

Lacking something to write about during the recent dull season of editorial comment, the editors of the Frankfort State Journal and the Bowling Green Messenger have taken to discussing biblical questions. Editor Leigh, of the Messenger, says he got into trouble by trying to please both sides on the long mooted question of the manner of baptism. It is only the strenuous advocate of either side of the dilemma nowadays who will admit of no departure from his views. It is now quite the general opinion that there were several forms of baptism practiced during apostolic times. If the heart is right and water is used, the commands of our Saviour are usually fulfilled.

CHICKENS ARE TRADED FOR A HOMELESS BABY

Left Homeless Again By Burning To Death of Its Adopted Mother.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 20.—The death of Mrs. Lillie Carnes, in a gasoline explosion yesterday, at her home, left homeless Maurine Carnes, one year old, adopted daughter, for whom Mrs. Carnes had traded five Plymouth Rock hens, a rooster and half a dozen chicks.

Mrs. Carnes made this trade when the mother of the baby came to Mrs. Carnes's home, after being discharged from the General Hospital. The mother said she had no place to go; that the baby had not been born in wedlock, and that she did not dare return with it to the home of her parents in the country. She said her parents were very poor.

Mrs. Carnes, taking pity on the young mother, said: "I'll take the baby. Here, take these chickens—they're all I can give you—and take them home with you. They will help you and your parents. You will be better off on the farm, and the chickens will give you a start toward making your own living."

The young mother has not been heard from recently.

Mrs. Carnes's husband deserted her three weeks ago. Left without any means of support, Mrs. Carnes was compelled to give the baby into the care of a neighbor.

This woman appeared in Juvenile Court today and obtained permission to keep the child.

GREAT RECORDS MADE IN RACES OF VETERANS

At Chattanooga Reunion—Nimble Sprints Were Made By Old Men.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 19.—Colonel J. L. Smith, 69 years old, of Detroit, Mich., this afternoon retained the Grand Army of the Republic speed championship title by winning a sprint and a long-distance race over seven challengers.

The Michigan champion took the one-hundred-and-forty-yard dash in the remarkable time of 17 seconds. In the gruelling two-and-a-half-mile contest Colonel Smith crossed the tape 300 yards ahead of H. G. Barnes, 68 years old, of Pittsburgh, Penn. The elapsed time was 16 minutes and 10 seconds.

Merideth Wolfe, 80 years old, of Chattanooga, broke through the barrier on a false start just preceding the first race. The United Confederate Veteran was speeding swiftly around the track when called back by his Union comrades. He felt unable to start again.

Col. C. W. Howe, 70 years old, of Port Huron, Mich., took third honors in both races. In the hundred-and-forty-yard dash, W. A. Heincheon, 67 years old, of Cleveland, finished fourth. Colonel Barnes fifth and Jacob Hoffer, 68 years old, of St. Cloud, Fla., sixth.

Few thought that any of the contestants would complete the two-and-one-half mile race.

BUSINESS CONCERNS READY FOR NEW TARIFF

Two things are noticeable as the new tariff is about to take effect—first, that business of all kinds is proceeding with increased energy and optimism, and secondly, that nowhere is there a marking-up of prices on the necessities of life.

Business in highly favored lines has responded in this fashion to the stimulus of privilege and monopoly when tariffs for extortion have been adopted, but in this instance practically all business feels the impulse of freedom and justice.

If under the new and lower schedules the cost of living does not immediately come down, it is certain that it is not going to be increased. For the first time, since the war tariff was imposed upon the people a half century ago, we have in sight a new tariff that cannot be urged as an excuse for higher prices.

The two things, business acquiescence and prices stable or showing a tendency to decline, go together. They prove that the country is ready for tax reduction; that it no longer leans helplessly upon tariffs; that it is weary of monopolistic shackles, and that from this time forward there must be freer trade and wider markets.—[New York World.

"LAW MAKA ME SEEK," SAYS ITALIAN BEAUTY

Los Angeles, Sept. 22.—A year ago Ida Puccinelli, 18, queen of the Italian colony of Half Moon Bay, California, married Abraham Barsiegla. Five days later she asked for a divorce. Judge explained that it couldn't be granted until she had been married a year.

The year passed and Mrs. Barsiegla appeared before Judge with George Bardon, another fiance. She asked for a license.

Judge explained that she must first be divorced.

"Understand?"

"Yes."

Then the County Clerk administered the oath.

"And you must be divorced a year before you can marry again."

The queen of the Italian colony flew into a rage. "De law maka me seek!" she shouted and fled.

Adenoids Are a Menace to Children.

Babies and young children must be carefully watched for the growth of adenoids, which spoil the mental and physical life of a child. They usually result from a succession of colds and throat irritations, and their presence is so productive of harm, that many school boards have an examining physician to detect them. The conditions that cause them may be easily avoided by careful parents. Quickly and thoroughly cure all colds and throat irritations by the use of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and adenoids will not develop. Sold by all dealers. (Advertisement.)

STATE FAIR ATTENDANCE SMALLEST ON RECORD

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 20.—Only a few thousand persons braved the cold wind and rain to attend the final day of the State Fair, which closed today. Despite the light attendance, due to bad weather throughout the week, Commissioner of Agriculture Newman to-night declared the fair had been a success in the matter of uniform co-operation over the State, and that while the receipts would show no margin over the disbursements, the indications were that expenses will be made.

The attendance for the week is estimated at 86,000, the smallest on record.

OUTPUT OF COAL IN KENTUCKY INCREASED

Two and a Half Millions of Tons,
Chiefly From the Eastern Counties.

Washington, Sept. 22.—The production of coal in Kentucky established a new record in 1912 with a total production of 16,490,521 short tons, according to Edward W. Parker, coal statistician of the United States Geological Survey. This represented an increase of 2,440,818 tons over the figures for 1911 and of nearly 2,000,000 tons over the former maximum output of 1910. There was an even greater increase in value in 1912, namely, 2,845,749 over the figures for 1911. The increased production in Kentucky was due chiefly to the new developments in the eastern part of the State, although the western counties participated largely in the gain.

The number of men employed in the mines in 1912 was 24,304, and the average production per man 678 tons. Kentucky ranks second among the States in the percentage of coal produced by machines, Ohio holding first place. In 1912, 66 per cent. of the coal produced was machine mined. Labor troubles in the State were insignificant during the year, but according to the United States Bureau of Mines, there were 51 fatalities in and about the mines, 41 underground, 2 in shaft and 8 on the surface.

The total area underlain by coal in the eastern counties of Kentucky is estimated at 10,270 square miles, and the coal-bearing areas in the western part of the State are estimated to contain 6,400 square miles. Up to the close of 1911 the larger part of the production of the State had been from the western district, but as a result of extensive developments in Harlan, Johnson, Letcher and Pike counties, the larger part of the coal production in 1912 was from the eastern part of the State. The Eastern Kentucky coals are mostly high-grade "gas" or "coking" coals, with some cannel coal.

HIGH DIVER LEAPS OFF THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE

New York, Sept. 22.—"Daredevil Murphy," as Joseph P. Murphy is known because of his high diving feats, took what he called a "practice" jump off the Brooklyn bridge yesterday, was picked up unharmed by three of his friends in a rowboat and afterward went calmly to sleep in a police station cell, where he was placed on a charge of "attempted suicide."

Murphy made his 135-foot jump clad in a bathing suit, which he wore under his street clothes, discarding the latter on the bridge promenade and leaping off the railing in sight of the Sunday bridge crowds before a policeman who ran for him could get near him.

WINTER HOME OFFERED TO PRESIDENT WILSON

ANOTHER SOUL GONE TO THE BEAUTIFUL BEYOND

The dark-browed angel has again visited our little city and claimed another of our loved ones, Mrs. Jennie Davis Alexander, wife of the late Dr. Wayland Alexander. This sad event occurred Friday, Sept. 19, 1913. Chronic nephritis was the disease that caused her death.

Mrs. Alexander was born April 2, 1841, and was therefore 72 years old at the time of her death. She was married to Mr. Wayland Alexander in September, 1861. She joined the C. P. Church at Little's Chapel in Daviess county, in 1869, and moved her membership to Hartford in 1889. Mrs. Alexander began teaching at the age of 16 years and assisted her husband at South Carrollton and also at Sacramento. She was the mother of several children, only one of whom—Mrs. E. L. Miller, of Chicago—survives her. All the others died in infancy. Four grandchildren survive her.

After funeral services at the family residence last Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. E. Saville, her remains were interred in Oakwood.

So Mrs. Alexander has gone. Just a few hours after the close of her long and well spent life, we stood by the downy couch prepared by loving hands, and looked upon the calm, sweet face, but with no feelings of sadness; for oh, how beautiful in death was this dreamlike sleeper, with the lingering influence of a pleasant, happy smile, as the angels kissed her spirit away.

No wonder that the radiance still lingered. It was the re-union of a loving husband, and dear ones, the fullest realization of a christian hope.

Sunday afternoon tender hands gently bore the casket that contained the once rare jewel to the silent city of the departed, where the soft air of springtime will kiss the opening flowers that will keep watch over her sacred dust. Farewell, dear friend, loving mother and sainted grandmother—a long farewell. M. B. B.

YANKEE ARTILLERYMAN WAS HIGHLY HONORED

Was Chosen To Become An Honorary "Johnny Reb" For Life.

For the first time in the history of any Confederate organization in Kentucky, and probably in the whole United States, a Union veteran of the Civil War—an officer at the battle of Gettysburg, who of all men was probably most directly responsible for the defeat of the Gray at that conflict—was elected an honorary member of a brigade which had served for the "Lost Cause" throughout the Civil War when, at the annual meeting of the Orphan Brigade at the Confederate Home, Col. Andrew Cowan, of Louisville, was thus honored. The selection was unanimous.

In a spirit of magnanimity for his former foe and in gratitude for his many kindnesses to the "Boys in Gray," Col. Cowan was elected by the veterans on motion of Col. Thomas D. Osborne, who is secretary of the brigade. The brigade's annual meeting was held on the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Chickamauga, where the members of the brigade served with gallantry. The annual meeting of the Kentucky division of the United Confederate Veterans, at which Gen. William B. Haldeman was unanimously elected commander, followed the Orphan Brigade meeting. The brigade first gathered at the home in L. S. Duke Hall.

Cheers followed the election of Col. Andrew Cowan as an honorary member of the Orphan Brigade. In putting the motion, after the recommendation of the Executive Committee, Col. Osborne told of Col. Cowan's record as a soldier. He came from New York, having enlisted in a battery of artillery from that State and having personally led the defense of a vital position which saved the day at the battle of Gettysburg. At every Confederate meeting, Col. Cowan has aided the "Boys in Gray," Col. Osborne said, and has generously contributed to all occasions.

The members gathered at the Confederate Home in Pevee Valley, Ky., where Col. Henry George, the commandant, delivered an address of welcome. The Kentucky Division, United Confederate Veterans, joined the members of the famous command in making the anniversary memorable, and held its annual meeting following that of the Orphan Brigade.

MEXICAN REBELS BLOW UP TRAIN—50 KILLED

Laredo, Tex., Sept. 22.—Fifty persons were killed when rebels dynamited a passenger train on the Mexican National railway, 100 miles south of Saltillo, Mexico, Friday afternoon, according to official reports to Mexican Federal headquarters in Nuevo Laredo to-day. The train was then looted and the surviving passengers robbed, it is said.

Forty Federal soldiers and ten second-class passengers comprised the official death list. The number of injured was not given.

W. W. Mervain, of San Francisco, the only American on the train, is said to have escaped injury, but was robbed.

Two dynamite mines were set off by electricity, it is said. The first-class coach was only derailed, but the baggage, express and two second-class coaches were blown to pieces.

It is thought that this report may relate to the occurrence described in to-night's dispatch from Mexico City, where meager details have been received of a similar dynamiting at a later date of a train on the same railroad. Venegas, named in the Mexico City dispatch, is approximately 100 miles below Saltillo. Interrupted wire communication later may explain the conflicting reports.

STATE OF KENTUCKY HAS 8,093 SCHOOLHOUSES

Supt. Hamlett Furnishes Federal Bureau With Interesting Figures.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 20.—The 8,093 schoolhouses in Kentucky were used for an average period of 139 days during the school year of 1911-12, according to a report made up for the federal bureau of education by State Superintendent Barksdale Hamlett. There were spent on the schools that year $7,180,286.35, and 11,089 teachers were employed over them and instructed 513,118 of the 739,681 children between the ages of six and twenty in Kentucky that year. Besides these there were 23,371 pupils in private schools. The county high schools had an enrollment of 2,648 pupils.

Analyzed, the report shows that sixty-nine schools kept open from eighty to 100 days that year; 8,015 from 101 to 120; 160 from 121 to 140; 200 from 141 to 160; 300 from 161 to 180, and 138 more than 181 days during the school year.

Besides the 11,089 teachers, of whom 5,382 were men and 5,707 women, there were 644 superintendents and assistants and 170 principals and supervisors.

The 8,093 school buildings with their grounds represented an original investment of $10,838,355, and their furnishings and equipment cost $1,217,576. The $7,180,286.35 spent for their maintenance that year was raised as follows: From the State, $3,297,699.41; from county taxation, $1,458,024.43; from graded school district taxes, $20,076.89; from city taxes, $2,400,475.62.

HAS CORRECT "DOPE" ON WINNING A HUSBAND

Engaged to twenty-five men, followed in five elopements and twice married, is a record which Mrs. Gussie Mashburn, of LaGrange, Ga., aged 17 years, declares qualifies her as an expert.

As such she says a marriage is not legal if the bride answers "No" when the justice asks her if she "will love, cherish and obey."

"Love is the only test of marriage," she says.

Mrs. Mashburn admits she was married to C. W. Smith, aged 47, a farmer, January 23 last, and that she has not been divorced. But she declares that the marriage was not legal because her grandfather forced her to marry Smith and because of her contrary answers.

The charge against her is bigamy. "I've got the dope on winning men," she declared in jail, "but Jack Mashburn really is the first to 'get me going.'"

"I thought it all a game until I got in love with him. No girl should marry a man that she cannot love and wash his dishes at the same time."

"I've been engaged to more than twenty-five, have had a cartload of diamond rings and I ought to know."

Diarrhoea Quickly Cured.

"I was taken with diarrhoea and Mr. Yorks, the merchant here, persuaded me to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. After taking one dose I was cured. It also cured others that I gave it to," writes M. E. Gebhart, Oriole, Pa. That is not at all unusual. An ordinary attack of diarrhoea can almost invariably be cured by one or two doses of this remedy. For sale by all dealers. (Advertisement)

OUR NEW MONEY WILL BE OF SMALL PATTERN

When the new bills that Uncle Sam is now preparing appear, our citizens will witness the greatest revolution that has ever been made in the size and appearance of paper money in the United States. Each one of the 2,000,000,000 notes of that kind now in circulation will be supplemented by uniform pieces of currency about a quarter size smaller than that now used. If the comment occasioned by the establishment of parcel post, the rural free delivery and every other innovation Uncle Sam has made in the last twenty years, could be rolled into one it would not bring forth a tenth part of the popular interest which will be manifested when the people realize that each and every piece of paper money is to be changed. That day will sound the doom of the counterfeit who now raises a $1 to a $10, a $10 to a $20, a $20 to a $50 bill, or in fact, misrepresents any denomination. The value of the new bills will be apparent on sight. Any note with Washington's portrait on it will be $1; Jefferson's $2; Lincoln's $5; Grover Cleveland's $10; Alexander Hamilton's $20; Andrew Jackson's $50; Franklin's $100; John Marshall's $500, and so on. It would then be utterly impossible for a forger to boost a one dollar bill to a ten dollar bill, as is so frequently done, because within a few months after the system has been in vogue every man, woman and child will have learned that Geo. Washington's picture stands for $1 and not $10.

300 MOTHERS IN RIOT; BABY SHOW POSTPONED

Lima, O., Sept. 18.—Three hundred frenzied women with crying babies in their arms fought for admission to-day to the baby contest of the Allen County Fair. In the melee the mothers dropped their babies, trampled on and mauled each other and many of them engaged in hair pulling matches. Finally the police were called. The remarkable feature of the riot was the fact that not one baby was seriously injured.

The trouble was caused by the statement of Dr. E. A. McCampbell of the State Board of Health. "He said half of the deaths of babies are preventable. In this connection the County Fair board offered to furnish physicians for the examination of all children between the ages of one and five. In addition they promised prizes for the prettiest and healthiest babies."

The contest started at 3 o'clock. Immediately the mothers with their babies lined up outside the door and made a rush. The show was postponed until to-morrow.

DIGGS AND CAMINETTI ARE GIVEN SENTENCES

San Francisco, Sept. 19.—Maury I. Diggs, former State Architect of California, was sentenced by Judge Van Fleet in the United States District Court to serve two years in the State penitentiary at San Quentin and to pay a fine of $2,000 for violating the Mann white slave traffic act.

CHILD WITHOUT BRAIN A CURIOUS PHENOMENON

Doctors Interested in Case Of Baby Which Lived Nearly Four Years.

The German medical press records the remarkable case of a child which lived for nearly four years without any trace of a forebrain. Neurologists explain that the case demonstrates the absolute dependence of human being on the fore or sentient brain, and shows that a human cannot carry on the ordinary process necessary for his preservation without it. The fish or frog without the forebrain has greater capability than had the child in question. This child revealed no trace whatever of this vital brain section, so its nervous system was absolutely similar to that of a fish, though the latter is capable of performing all the vital functions necessary for nutrition and self-defense.

The case of the child is especially noteworthy because of the long duration of its life. In other cases the brainless life lasted only for a few days, and the movements of the child did not differ in any respect from those of a normal child.

In the case under discussion the child lived three and three-fourths years, permitting numerous extensive observations of its state. The child remained in a condition of continual sleep. Its arms were fixed and rigid. It was unable to grasp or hold anything with its hands. From the second year onward the child cried incessantly, though this could instantly be stopped by mere pressure, especially on the head. It was impossible to note any psychological action, to awaken any feelings, or to teach the child anything. [Berlin Cor. New York Times.]

EVERY VISIT SCHOOL? —IT'S GOOD PRACTICE

You look out carefully for the exterior of your boy as he sets out for school in September. He must have shiny shoes, well brushed hair, a clean necktie, or he must stay at home. But do you know anything about what they are putting into his head? The old-fashioned school used to have a throng on "exhibition day." The children sang sweet little songs about daisies, and spoke pretty poems about the birds. The question whether they could keep a cash account or write a hand that a human being could read was much in the background. If a parent happened into the schoolroom on any day but the closing one, a hush of awe spread over the little faces at the unexpected sight. Teacher rattled her papers nervously, and the pupils missed. Visitors are more common in modern schools. But probably not one parent in 10 enters a schoolroom once in a term. And yet the question what they are doing with their children is vastly more important than what the styles of children's coats are. But the parents do not seem to think so. [Yazoo (Miss.) Sentinel.]

THERE MAY BE LONG LEGAL BATTLE OVER HARRY THAW

Concord, N. H., Sept. 20.—Harry K. Thaw sat behind a great heap of newspapers at the breakfast table this morning reading Washington dispatches saying that if his case went to the United States Supreme Court years might roll by before a decision was handed down.

"We can wait," said the fugitive, "but I hope Governor Felker will decide against my extradition at once, so that it will not be necessary to press our habeas corpus writ in the federal courts."

Rain during the night swept the big elms in front of the State house, where the extradition hearing is to be held on Tuesday, and Thaw expressed a desire to walk through the grounds. The sheriff said that later his wish would be granted.

Ten law clerks, retained by Thaw's counsel, were busy to-day looking up State and Federal rul-

"So far we have been unable to find any case where a person in Thaw's position was ever extradited," said one of the lawyers.

The same statement, in substance, was made by Federal Judge Aldrich at Littleton, on Tuesday, in a discussion with William Travers Jerome.

Work of Necessity.

The other Sunday two small boys were industriously digging in a vacant lot, when a man who was passing stopped to give them a lecture. "Don't you know that it is a sin to dig on Sunday unless it be a case of necessity?" asked the good man. "Yes, sir," timidly replied one of the boys.

"Then why don't you stop it?" "Cause this is a case of necessity," replied the little philosopher. "A feller can't fish without bait."

COLE YOUNGER IS IN THE RIGHT WAY

Now, and Is Starting His Life Anew,

AFTER A TURBULENT CAREER

His Religion Is Deep-Seated
And Not of the Spectacular Variety.

WILL NOT TALK OF THE PAST

The Kansas City Star gives the following account of the conversion of Cole Younger, the former bandit:

It is a real religion, and not show religion, that Cole Younger has. He is not going to preach, nor be an evangelist nor make any sensational display whatever of his new-found Christianity.

"I've just simply made my peace with God, and the balance of my days I just want to live a quiet, simple, Christlike life," said the former bandit yesterday in Lees Summit.

He was sitting in the shade on the porch of the little cottage that he bought and gave to his niece, Miss Nora Hall. He was smoking a long-stemmed German pipe and there was a look of deep earnestness and tenderness in his face as he took a long whiff of the pipe and then said:

"I've led an adventurous, turbulent life. The war brought on hate and strife and killing around here. They murdered my father when I was a schoolboy and I was launched into a life of reprisals and shooting and rough riding, winding up with twenty-five years in prison. Now, my folks were all Christians. I was brought up in a Christian home, and now I am an old man, seventy next January, and I've come, by God's mercy, back to this very spot where I spent my childhood, to end my days."

He swung the long pipe stem around in a circle.

"Why I ran barefoot all around where these streets are. There was no Lees Summit then. This was called Big Cedar post-office, and Dr. Lee kept it. My father owned 10,000 acres of land in this county and we lived just north of where we are sitting now, and I ranged here as a boy. And now, to realize what's in my heart, and how sincere I am, you must have understanding of how thankful I am to God that He has, in His bountiful mercy, preserved me and brought me back here, safe and sound, after all I've been through, to spend my last years ministered to by the women of my own family and cheered by the laughter and love of children. The feeling has been growing on me strong these last years that my mother's prayers were being answered and that God was leading me by the hand, and so I have just given my heart to Him and I feel that the sins of my past are blotted out and that I am a child of God."

No cant about it; no air of hypocrisy. The old outlaw, six feet tall, 260 pounds in weight, massive in form, with his strong, forceful looking face, sat there talking in a low voice, tenderly, but very earnestly, and while he was talking a friend in a motor car stopped in front of the house and a woman's cheery voice called:

"It's time for Sunday School, Uncle Cole."

"I'm ready," he sang out, and then he said to his visitor: "We'll have to end this visit now, but I'll see you again after meetings."

In the tabernacle of the Christian church, where three hundred children met in Sunday School, Cole Younger sat back where a breeze blew in an open door, and he took off his coat to be more comfortable, but when the preaching began he put on his coat and moved down in front and joined in singing the chorus of:

'Tis a great change for me,
A great change for me!
O now I am happy,
From sin I've been set free;
From out of the darkness I've stepped into light,
And 'tis a great change for me.

He went to the meeting at night, and when the evangelist asked him to pray he stood up and repeated the Lord's Prayer.

"Our Father which art in heaven—"

He stumbled a little on the last part of it, not because he had forgotten it—he can repeat whole chapters from the Bible—but because he was nervous.

"That was my first public prayer," he said afterward. "Not my first prayer by any means, mind you, I've often prayed to myself."

"My grandmother Pristoe used to ask me if I ever prayed before I went into battle. I told her I always did, which was true. I never rode where the bullets were whistling around me without murmuring a prayer. But I did not tell dear old grandma that in ten minutes after I got into a fight I was cussin' loud enough to be heard a mile. She intended for me to be a preacher, but I missed it. But I always intended to be a Christian some day. In my early life I laid out to do three things—marry, become a Mason and a Christian, but I never had time to do either until now. I never married. I loved a girl, but the war came on and I lost her, and I've never had another."

"I never became a Mason because I never had a chance until after I came out of prison, and then I did not dare to try it for fear that someone, remembering my past record, would put a black ball against me, and that would break my heart," continued the old man.

The old man talked of his ancestry, but he would not talk of his outlaw days.

The last few years he has been failing and he had to cancel some lecture dates last winter. He has twenty-two bullets in his body and these affect his health.

Younger was converted under the preaching of O. E. Hamilton, an evangelist who had been holding a revival in the Christian church in Lees Summit.

"There was nothing sensational about my conversion," said Younger. "I merely took a step that I have intended to take since boyhood, and that I have been preparing to take for several years. And now that I have taken it I am going to live right up to it, every minute from now on to the end."

The October American Magazine.

One of the most astonishing contributions to the October American Magazine is an article by a Yale teacher entitled "The Village of a Thousand Souls." The author of the article, Arnold L. Gesell, has made a complete investigation of the 220 families that constitute a certain small village in the Middle West. His investigation reaches back through one whole generation—thirty-three years. The results of his investigation indicate an appalling amount of feeble-mindedness, insanity, alcoholism and general delinquency in small villages.

In the same issue Ray Stannard Baker writes a really wonderful article about Colonel George W. Goethals, the builder of the Panama Canal. It is an article containing more specific and interesting information about the Canal and its remarkable builder, than has been collected before. Another interesting article in the number is a true story of a morphine fiend who reformed. This article is in a series entitled "Those Who Have Come Back"—a series of true stories of people who, failures or disgraced at forty, have succeeded in "coming back" to lives of usefulness.

The prize winning letters in a contest entitled "How I Saved My First $100" complete an unusually spirited number.

ENGAGED 50 YEARS AGO,
THEY WILL NOW MARRY

Kansas City, Sept. 20.—R. S. Hall, 70, a retired farmer of Breckenridge, Mo., and Mrs. L. H. Carr, 64, of Hartsville, Ind., who were engaged to wed fifty years ago, have obtained a marriage license.

They were childhood sweethearts back in Indiana. Hall was a poor boy. When he was 16 he went barefooted a-courting the girl of his choice. Later they were betrothed.

"Our Father which art in heaven—"

He stumbled a little on the last part of it, not because he had forgotten it—he can repeat whole chapters from the Bible—but because he was nervous.

"That was my first public prayer," he said afterward. "Not my but the girl's parents, who were wealthy, broke the engagement. Hall came west, married and became owner of several rich Missouri farms. Then he heard of his former sweetheart's marriage to one of the rich men of Hartsville. Many years afterward he heard of this man's death. When Hall's wife died five years ago he received a letter of sympathy from Mrs. Carr and subsequent correspondence led to a meeting here.

FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Just Suppose For a Moment That They All Turned to Facts.

No situation is more difficult to deal with than that in which a figure of speech becomes a fact. I mean that when we have been using a phrase truly, but in its general and metaphorical sense, we are rather embarrassed than otherwise if we find that it is true, even in its strict and literal sense. There does not seem to be anything more to say. Suppose you heard a family remark casually. "It's madness in papa to go to Norway!" And suppose the next instant papa sprang into the room through a smashed window, with straw in his hair and a carving knife and howled aloud: "Ebbuhhoo! I'm going to Norway!" The incident would be disconcerting. It would not be easy to pursue the subject.

Or suppose we said to some stately, silver haired woman who was annoyed, "I think it childish of you to take offense so easily." And suppose she sat down suddenly on the floor and began to scream for her doll and her skipping rope. We would be at a loss. Words suited to the situation would not easily suggest themselves.

Of if a wife said to her husband, apropos of a luxurious friend to whom he gave expensive dinners, "He's simply robbing you," her remarks would be cut short rather than further encouraged by the sight of the friend climbing out of the window with the silver teapot under his arm. The wife would have the extremely unpleasant sensation of having said the worst thing she could and having nothing more to say.

Cases, of course, could be multiplied indefinitely, as the case of one who, entering a lodging house, should say "Rats!" in disparagement of its praises and find himself instantly surrounded by those animals, or one who should remark, "Uncle Joseph has lost his head over this," and should find him decapitated in the garden.—Illustrated London News.

SAYS HUSBAND KEPT HER
IN ASYLUM FOR 15 YEARS

Cleveland, O., Sept. 19.—Declaring that she had been imprisoned in the New York State Hospital at Kings Park, Long Island, for 15 years illegally by her husband, Mrs. Margaret Evans came here from Jersey City to-day and filed suit for divorce.

She says she does not know the whereabouts of her husband, Thomas J. Evans. The latter formerly was a gardener for W. S. Tyler, of West Park, Ohio, but has disappeared.

They were married in 1893 in New Jersey, and two years later, after the death of her baby, Mrs. Evans says her husband induced her to go to the hospital in the belief that it was a sanitarium. He said her health was poor, and she consented to take the trip.

When she got there she found it was an asylum for the insane. She said she was kept there 15 years. Her husband visited her once a year for the first few years, but finally stopped his visits.

She was released in 1912 and went to the home of her sister in Jersey City, who had been instrumental in obtaining her release.

OLD FORT COLTON

Now New York's Famous Aquarium
at the Battery.

ONCE NAMED CASTLE GARDEN.

The Historic Building in Its Day Has Heard the Eloquence of Daniel Webster, the Fiery Oratory of Kossuth and the Divine Voice of Jenny Lind.

Before New York's famous old building at the Battery became the Aquarium it had changed from fort to reception hall, from chief amusement place of the city to gateway of the promised land. Long before it became the home of the funny tribe the building resounded with shouts for Lafayette, Andrew Jackson, Tyler, Van Buren. It heard the eloquence of Daniel Webster, the fiery oratory of Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, and the divine voice of Jenny Lind, the Swedish Nightingale.

When the building was new it stood on a little island separated from the mainland by some 200 feet of water, and was reached by crossing a drawbridge. A great part of Battery park was then water, and it was the filling in of this stretch that made the aquarium a part of the mainland. The reason for building it on an island away from the main shore was disclosed in a government order to Colonel Jonathan Williams, who had charge of the construction of the proposed fort. This order said to construct the fortification so that the guns could be trained on both the North and East rivers.

"A foundation should be made around the bastion of the old Battery, where the flagstaff is placed, extending forty or fifty feet from the present, and upon this foundation a battery should be constructed in such manner that the gun on the right will take in the North river, while that upon the left will range along the coastline of the old Battery."

Such were the orders the government gave Colonel Williams. But Colonel Williams said it was impossible for guns to command the entrance to the North and East rivers if they were placed at the old Battery. Two hundred feet out from the shore was the least distance at which that result could be accomplished, and some time afterward the secretary of war authorized the colonel's plan for the fort's construction.

In 1822, eleven years after its erection, when the military headquarters was transferred to Governor's island, the federal authorities ceded Fort Colton—as the present aquarium was then called—back to the city. Throughout the war of 1812 not one shot had been fired at an enemy from this fort, nor has one been fired since. The embrasures for the thirty and thirty-two pounders that were never used against an enemy can still be seen in the nine foot outer wall.

It was then that the former fort became a place of amusement and received the name of Castle Garden, a name which it retained for three quarters of a century. Two years after the shifting of soldiers to Governor's island and Castle Garden was the scene of a great reception given to General Lafayette when he visited America in 1824. It was also the scene of a great memorial service when he died ten years later.

It was there that Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, first demonstrated the possibility of controlling an electric current in 1835. During those early years, too, it was the scene of the receptions given to American presidents when they visited New York. Jackson, Tyler and Van Buren were received there, and later on the Prince of Wales. There also many great political meetings were held. Some of Daniel Webster's greatest orations were delivered there.

Castle Garden was widely proclaimed as the first real home of opera in America. The great auditorium, now occupied by fish, ordinary and extraordinary, was then packed nightly with people who gathered to hear those famous artists of the middle nineteenth century: Malibran, Sontag, Mario, Grisi, the members of Julien's orchestra and—best known of all—Jenny Lind, whom all the theatergoing public of the United States and Europe worshipped. The first night in 1850 that the Swedish Nightingale appeared at Castle Garden, under the management of P. T. Barnum, the choice seats sold for several hundred dollars. Her tremendous popularity was made even greater when she gave to local charities the $10,000 which composed her share of the box office receipts.

The next year Louis Kossuth, the famous Hungarian patriot, came from England to the United States and made an address to a vast and enthusiastic throng in Castle Garden.

This was one of the last great receptions held in the historic old building. Four years later it was converted into an immigrant station for the port of New York and from then until 1890, when the immigration office was removed to Ellis island, it served as the gateway through which 8,000,000 of people entered to work out their destinies in the new world. In 1890 it became the aquarium.—New York Sun.

URGE BILL TO CREATE ROADS ACROSS AMERICAN CONTINENT

Convention to Ask Congress For Cross Country Military Roads.

Steps to lay before congress the necessity of building cross country military highways and the passage of such bills, as well as to bring before the state legislatures bills for the construction of lateral roads connected with the federal cross country highways, will be the purpose of a six days' convention of the United States Good Roads association in St. Louis. The association was formed at Birmingham, Ala., and is a consolidation of forty road building organizations that will have headquarters in St. Louis.

The association wants the east and west roads to be federal highways constructed by United States engineers and maintained by the government. An important feature of the convention will be an exposition of road building materials and machinery, under the auspices of the conventions bureau in Suburban Garden, where the convention also will be held. It is believed the entire eighty-six good roads organizations in the United States will be affiliated with the new association by November.

AUTOMOBILE TRAFFIC HARD ON ALL MACADAM ROADS

Repairs, Needed Once a Year, Are Difficult and Short Lived.

Highway engineers long ago discovered that the ordinary macadam road has no chance under automobile traffic. The best of them, well founded and crowned and surfaced, hardly last a season. "Spotty" repairs are difficult and short lived, and a highway nine-tenths of whose surface is in good condition soon has to be entirely made over because of the ruined one-tenth, says the New York Evening Post. The various forms of surface bound macadam—turfed, oiled, etc.—have given better service than the plain macadam, but they, too, are comparatively short lived under heavy motor traffic and similarly defective in requiring complete renewal when but a small part of the road is worn out.

The result of this new situation is that the macadam road, which furnished a comparatively cheap and satisfactory highway for horse traffic, has become one of the most expensive forms of road surface. The fact that but a small part of the road surface is needed for motor traffic a highway not much traveled could carry 99 per cent of its traffic on two strips six inches wide; where there was more travel four strips would be necessary. This has led to the suggestion that the railway track principle be applied in building automobile highways. Apparently a test of this plan has not been made—at least not on a scale sufficiently large to furnish conclusive information as to its practical value. Such strips have been used on bridges and about factories where heavy truck loads have to be moved.

Recently, however, the subject has been taken up in England, and there appears some probability that the "hard road strip" will be given a thorough test in the near future. A British engineer, discussing the problem, suggests the following possible hard strip materials: Asphalt, wood paving, metal plates, concrete blocks. The most obvious difficulty to be overcome in these strip roads is that of maintaining the proper relation between the strips and the rest of the road surface. There will always be a tendency for the macadam to break along the edges of any hard strip, and the problem of keeping the surface in good condition at these points will necessarily be a difficult one.

Roads Increase School Attendance.

Seven millions of the 25,000,000 school children in the United States do not regularly attend school, and one-half of these live in the country, where bad roads, muddy roads, rutty roads and dangerous roads not only prevent them from getting to school, but their impoverishment of the farm prevents the existence of any good schools for them to go to.

MAGIC OF HOUDIN

He Scared the Algerians and Conquered the Nation.

A LITTLE BLACK BOX DID IT.

By the Aid of a Magnet and a Current of Electricity He Struck Terror to the Hearts of the Arabs and Took All the Desire For Fight Out of Them.

"These are great times," exulted the Electrician to his friend the Old Fogey. "With machine guns and other instruments of war we certainly are going some in the fighting game."

"Yes," agreed the Old Fogey as he adjusted his glasses, "but do you know that before such things were dreamed of an entire nation was conquered with a magnet and a little black box?"

And the Electrician confessed, "No!" "You have heard, no doubt," the Old Fogey rambled on, "of the marvelous inventions of Robert Houdin, the great French conjurer, a man who did great things with electricity when Alexander Graham Bell was an infant."

"Houdin applied electricity to many of his magical experiments and delighted the Parisian public for years in his little theater. When he retired he was the most favored performer of his day and had bowed to the plaudits of royalty."

"Heard all about that," snapped the Electrician. "What about the black box?"

"Coming to that, boy; coming to that, Houdin retired to his family estate on the left banks of the River Loire near St. Gervaise, hoping to end his days in peace. But after a year or so there came to him through a military friend a request from the French government that he go to Algiers."

"In his memoirs, translated into English some years before his death, he says that the Marabouts of that country, a sort of medicine men and wonder working priests, controlled the masses and incited them to intermittent revolts against the French by their tricks. These tricks, he assures us, were of the simplest and most primitive type."

"It was the hope of the French government that Houdin by his mysteries could demonstrate that the white conqueror's magic was superior. And Houdin did it."

"With the little black box and the magnet?"

"Yes. His recital of his performance in Algiers is exceedingly interesting. Some of the most distinguished natives were there. Houdin showed them all sorts of things; allowed himself to be shot at and caught the bullet unharmed and many other such feats."

"But his piece de resistance undoubtedly was his box. He called for a strong man to come on the stage, and a giant responded. Houdin toyed with him for a moment, lathered with him about his strength and asked him if he could lift his little black box. Disdainfully the Arab lifted it and smiled."

"But Houdin warned him: 'Wait. But a moment, and you shall be as a little child.' He placed the box on the stage over the magnet and dared his huge guest to raise it. The Arab tried with one finger, grasped it with his great muscular hand, lifted it with all the strength of his massive arms, and his legs like two huge bronze columns, as Houdin says, to no avail. Try as he would, this son of the desert could not stir that little box from its place."

"For a breathing spell he released his grip for a moment, then went at it again as Houdin gave a signal to have the current turned off. And while the awe-stricken audience gazed in amazement he suddenly writhed in acutest agony and sank groveling to the stage. The current coursing through him had galvanized him into misery."

"Then Houdin gave a signal, the current from the electric magnet beneath the stage was turned off, and the Arab fell back gasping. He lifted himself to his feet and, hiding his face in his cloak, crept away to bluish unseen. The little black box had conquered."

"And?" inquired the Electrician.

"And," replied the Old Fogey, "Houdin was triumphant. The country had seen him shot at by a man who said he wished to kill; had seen him rob a giant of his strength. No Marabout with primitive tricks could convince them that any revolt of theirs could prevail against the white man and his magic—his electricity. The conqueror's conquest was complete."—Popular Electricity.

Thought He Was on the Phone.

"Then, Minnie, you are going to get another physician instead of the old health inspector?"

"Yes; he is too absentminded. Recently as he examined me with the stethoscope he suddenly called out, 'Hello! Who is it?'—Filegenda Blatter."

DYNAMITE WAS USED TO ANNIHILATE FAMILY

Fiendish Crime Of a Madman—Domestic Trouble The Cause.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 20.—Carefully selecting the places where he believed the most damage would be done, Mack Hurst, 50 years old, a stone mason, early to-day blew up his home here with dynamite, killing himself and his seventeen-year-old daughter Maude, and injuring two other children and stunning his wife.

The injured: Fannie Hurst, 13, one leg broken and body lacerated; Elizabeth Hurst, 6, severely cut and bruised; Mrs. Rena Hurst, 49, stunned by explosion.

Hurst has been separated from his wife for six weeks and yesterday she refused to take him back. It is believed that he then, in a fit of insanity, determined to wipe out the entire family, consisting of his wife and eight children.

The dead girl met the fate intended for her mother, and the fact that they had changed beds for the night cost the daughter her life.

Hurst, after stealthily, in the darkness, planting a stick of dynamite under each of the three beds in the house, tied two sticks to his own body, crawled into the bed which he had formerly occupied with his wife, but which last night contained the three daughters, Maude, Fannie and Elizabeth.

Fannie spoke to her father. "Lay still," Hurst replied. "We will all die together."

Before the girl could make a move the explosion rent the house and aroused the entire city. The police and fire department rushed to the scene, sent the two injured girls to the hospital and cleared away the debris.

Four sticks of dynamite, unexploded, were found in the ruins, and the fact that only one, and that one attached to Hurst's body, had exploded, accounted for the escape of the other members of the family.

CAUGHT BETWEEN FIRE AND A FURIOUS BULL.

Muskegon, Mich., Sept. 20.—Attacked by a bull and forced to take refuge in a tree which later caught fire from burning brush was the thrilling experience of R. T. Lane, an Eggleston township farmer living near here yesterday. Lane managed to put out the fire in the tree. He had his eye-brows burned off and his clothing scorched. He climbed sixty feet into the tree before he was able to check the flames that spread through the branches. The bull kept in the neighborhood of the tree and Lane was unable to make his escape for several hours. Finally a line of fire forced the bull from the tree and Lane was able to descend. He fled through the hot embers of the brush fire and had one foot burned.

LECTURE PLATFORM IS ABANDONED BY BRYAN

Washington, Sept. 20.—William J. Bryan, Secretary of State, has abandoned his lecture tour and in the future will devote his time exclusively to the affairs of the State Department.

The announcement was made to-night by Benjamin Davis, chief clerk of the State Department and an intimate friend of Secretary Bryan. The announcement stated that Secretary Bryan would deliver the last Chautauqua lecture at Warrenton to-morrow night.

No cause is given for the sudden termination of the series of lectures which Secretary Bryan had planned, but it was believed here to-night that the influence of the White House had been brought to bear upon the head of the Cabinet to abandon his program in the face of the hostile criticism which his lectures have brought forth both in the United States and from foreign countries as well.

A SERIOUS AFFLICTION FOR ROYAL CHILDREN

Manchester, Eng., Sept. 22.—Relatives of the Queen of Spain have been shocked by the news that the second daughter of the Queen, like her second son, will be both deaf and dumb, says the Manchester Guardian.

It is feared that the little Spanish Princess is totally deaf, and unless this can be corrected she will probably never be able to speak.

The pessimistic reports of the royal physicians and specialists have nearly broken the heart of the Queen. She goes constantly with her children to the convents of the religious orders in and near Madrid to ask for prayers of intercession on their behalf, and particularly of late on behalf of her young daughter.

SLEEPING CARS IN AFRICA.

They Are Not Too Clean and the Conductor Makes the Beds.

Describing railroad travel in South Africa, E. W. Howe in his Monthly says:

"Soon after the train conductor looked at our tickets he proceeded to lug two huge bags of bed clothing into our compartment and make up two beds. We paid $1.20 for the use of the bed clothing two nights; the charge would have been the same for one night. So that we will have a large compartment to ourselves two nights and a day and pay only $1.20 above the regular fare. The beds were comfortable, though somewhat narrow, but we slept as well. I imagine, as people usually do on a sleeping car. On our door and on our window were placards announcing that the compartment was reserved, and we were not disturbed during the journey. When this reservation placard is not displayed any one has a right to a seat or bed in a compartment that is not full.

"The South African sleeping cars are not at all bad, except that the train conductor has so much to do that he cannot keep them as clean as they should be. The conductor did not polish my shoes at night, but I knew he was very busy and overlooked his neglect.

"I wish the haughty conductors of American passenger trains could see our conductor with his coat off, making up beds. I wish they could also see our tickets, which cover nearly 3,000 miles of travel and read from Durban to Victoria Falls and back to Beira. I am unable to understand them, but the conductors have no difficulty.

"On one or two trains we have been on there was a man who helped the conductor, but on at least two crowded trains on which we traveled the conductor had no help whatever in making up the beds; the most curious thing I have ever noted in railroad travel. There is a guard on the train, who is what we call a brakeman, but he does not assist the conductor in the chamber work. When these conductors are taking the tickets they are as haughty as are American conductors, but when they begin lugging in sheets and pillows and mattresses they are as humble as the most timid traveler could wish."

KEYS AS THEY TURN.

Most of Them Unlock by Twisting Them to the Right.

"You would be amazed," said Professor Lookabout informally, as he started to unlock his desk in preparation for the morning's classwork, "to know how many persons are unable to tell offhand which way a key turns. Only the other day, in a chat with one of the best informed men of my acquaintance, I was astonished to learn that he believed most keys turned to the left to unlock their locks. He was trying to open a typewriter desk, and he struggled with the key several moments before he made the astounding discovery that it unlocked by turning to the right.

"Why," he said to me, with a surprised air, "this key works the wrong way."

"Just what do you mean by 'the wrong way?'" was my natural query. "It unlocks to the right," he replied. "So do most keys," I told him, whereupon he glanced at me skeptically. It took me several minutes to convince him that, as usual, I was right. The fact is that, whereas door keys unlock to the left perhaps as often as to the right, depending on which side of the door you face, the key to almost anything except a door is pretty sure to turn to the right to unfasten the lid or drawer or roller upon which it secures. A little observation is all one requires to prove the truth of this. It's one of the little things which once in a while may be well worth knowing."

And the professor absentmindedly tried to unlock his desk by turning the key to the left.—New York Times.

Simplified Spelling.

Lovers of simplified spelling should make a pilgrimage to Nevada, in Essex, where the church wardens' accounts in the eighteenth century were quite delightfully phonetic. Under the date 1742 occurs the entry: "Gave Geekup Kollins for his gall too sheilins and six pens. Also his close for the insawing yere." The mysterious word "gall" seems to signify the girl or daughter of "Geekup Kollins." And some of us who have drunk the cup of feminine militancy to the dregs may accept gall as the right spelling.—London Mail.

Poetry and Pay.

Poetry, it is declared, is about the worst paid form of writing. "That may be true, regarded from the standpoint of dollars and cents, but the man who can get a poem out of his system should feel that he is pretty well paid for his effort."—Toledo Blade.

One Use For It.

"I suppose classical music is all right in its place," said Maud. "I'm sure it is," replied Mamie. "I don't care to listen to it myself, but sometimes you have to play it in order to get a man to go home."—Washington Star.

On Occasions.

"Are you superstitious about thirteen at table?" asked Mrs. Hickenlooper. "I am when there's hardly enough food for twelve," said Mrs. Giddybody. —Magazine of Fun.
